license. They infringe on you, they violate, they violate us in some manner. It's just a terrible situation. And that part has never happened to me, but I guess it happens to thousands. Maybe some of you know people who have been violated in this manner. It's just...it must be devastating to think of that. And you read of cases where they go through the rest of their lives trying to pro...you know, trying to restructure, whatever they do, to get that...to get that back, that reputation they had before, and it...and it's on record, I guess. It's just terrible. You know what? It just doesn't happen to the rich, it doesn't happen to the medium class, it doesn't happen to the poor, it happens to everyone. So we're all in this boat. So it's not just something that, you know, it's here, here, here. It's everybody, I guess. And it's a growing problem. I guess with computers, you all understand this better than I do, I should just sit down here and not ramble on. But it's an important issue, it affects all of us, and whatever we can do, now, in the right manner. I guess the committee worked on this and everybody in the committee has worked on it, and they know much more about it than I do. So I was just so pleased to find an issue that affected all of us, and I looked around and Senator Redfield and say, hey, I have just the thing for you. And you know what, I had been talking about this two years before so it was a godsend, I guess, from Senator Redfield. And I appreciate you bringing this bill forward so Jim Cudaback could make it his priority bill and the priority bill of everybody, all the rest of the 48. Even Senator Chambers is laughing, or not laughing but shaking his head and that's good; that's a good sign. Thank you. I'll set down when I'm ahead.

SENATOR COORDSEN: Too bad the Chair isn't allowed editorial comments. (Laughter) Thank you, Senator Cudaback. Senator Chambers, your light is next, please.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Mr. President, joining the chorus, I will paraphrase something Shakespeare wrote, "Who steals my purse steals trash, who steals my good name makes me poor indeed." And as Senator Landis and Senator Cudaback and others have pointed out, this goes beyond just a material item. Senator Redfield reminds me of one of Jesus' parables, where there was an unjust judge named, whatever his name was, I started to give
